Subject: Funding Update Needed
Importance: High

Guys,

Can I expect at least $50K from the TIF Charitable account by this Friday? As you recall, I met with you Michael in person on March 16th and notified you that I would like you to liquidate all of the funds from all of the accounts you manage for us and our Foundation as soon as possible and that is still our desire. It has been more than six months.

This Wednesday, I'm currently scheduled to start a process which will be one of the lowest points of my life as I begin to have several discussions with individuals and organizations and break our promises of support. This situation is very unfortunate but is one of the many consequences of by far the worst financial decision I have ever made. Since I haven't heard from you and there is no plan, I feel I must start this process now.

The first discussion will be with [REDACTED] We currently provide 25% of her support. Her and her husband have two small children and go to church with [REDACTED] and me. We have supported her and her family for about eight years.

The next one will be with [REDACTED] We have supported [REDACTED] and his wife [REDACTED] for over ten years and we are about 60% of their support. They will most likely need to break their apartment lease and move in with family. This is going to be my toughest discussion as he is a very dear friend.

I will have many more stories like this, as we support 24 different individuals and organizations. Granted, we would not support all of these causes forever, but I always thought there would be a planned and gradual wind down.

You know how giving is my passion and purpose. I cannot express in words how emotional and depressing this is for me.

I would really appreciate a response from both of you on this.

What I need is liquidity. That is why I'm selling my house. Have a good day.
